Primer of the Battalion Attack—Drill.

By Lieut.-Colonel B. C. Tilghman, Jr., Third Infantry.

(Copyrighted)

THE following Attack Formation drill has been used by the author in his Officers' Schools and Battalion Drills. It has seemed easier to get results by first perfecting a drill of this kind and then impressing upon the company commanders that it is only a type to be departed from whenever circumstances render it advisable, than to endeavor to teach them the proper handling of their men under varying circumstances, and then to combine such instruction in the attack. The U. S. Infantry Drill regulations have been closely followed except in the omission of line of sections, as the ordinary platoon, for drill, is never strong enough to divide into larger units than squads.

The regulation of the fire and the progress of the attack by the orders of the battalion commander are for drill purposes at first. Later he can quietly warn the officers in command of the firing line when to assume the different formations and require the commanders of the rear eschelons to properly conform thereto. Later still the conditions of the supposed attack can be alone stated and all officers required to properly conduct their commands in conformity therewith.

Likewise many or most of the commands of the platoon and squad leaders may, and later should, be given by signal. The full text of the orders is given in the text as the most concise method of showing what they should cause their men to do. Scouts and combat patrol, covering the flanks, may be used, but their movements have no fixed relation to those of the Battalion.

NOTES.

The right center and left center companies should be made alternately the base companies, and the flank companies often brought into the center of the battalion until all know their duties in the various positions.

Then the flank companies can be designated for the fighting line. In this case the extension would be the same except each would deploy their line of squads inward so as to cover the front of the battalion, in place of outward. That is, the right company would take the commands set down for the left center company and the left company those of the right center company. By constant use of such variations the rigid character of drill will be eliminated from the formation and officers and men alike will be brought to see that results are what is desired—in the proper formation and constant reinforcement of the firing line—and will soon instinctively adopt those best suited to the ground and the supposed conditions of the attack.

THE illustrations on Pages 11 and 13 represent the beautiful bronze statuettes offered by General Charles Miller, commanding Division National Guard of Pennsylvania, to the Regiment of the First and Third Brigades and the Troop of Cavalry, making the highest score during the year at Rifle Practice.

"The Last Drop," by Schruvogle—Cavalry.
"The Scout," by Hardy—First Brigade.
"Halt," by Hastings—Third Brigade.

These prizes are very modern and are representative of the period and shows the great interest manifested by General Miller in Rifle Practice.

FOR the last year, a great many requests have been made on the Publisher for copies of the Primer of Battalion-Attack Drill by Lieut, Colonel B. C. Tilghman, Jr., Third Infantry. At this time it is deemed expedient to give a reprint of this important work.

It is a superb exemplification of Battalion work and will no doubt prove of great interest to our many readers.

SO much has been said by our daily and weekly contemporaries regarding the hospitable treatment of the Troops that took part in the unveiling ceremonies of the Monument dedicated to our late Gen. Alexander L. Hawkins at Schenley Park, that we deem it needless to go into a epetition, but in the next issue of the journal, we will give some illustrations that will no doubt prove interesting to the many Guardsmen who attended.

Colonel Logan, Lieut. Col. Penney and the Committee having the arrangements in charge are deserving of a great deal of credit for the manner in which they handled the affair. It is stated that this was the largest mobilization of Troops in Pittsburg since the War of the Rebellion, and that the people of Pittsburg were so well pleased with the showing of the State soldiery that their interest and pride in the local organizations is likely to go up one hundred per cent.

NOTES

The ornament on the sleeve of the full dress coat for aides on the Staff of the several Brigadier Generals, will be a Union shield with a spread eagle device and a very appropriate collar device has been adopted for the several Aides on the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief, which is to be worn on the olive drab uniform. It consists of a small bronze coat-of-arms of the State and has the same significance as a Department ornament.

Captain J. Beaver Gearhart, Company "F", 12th Infantry, whose commission expires November next, may accept a Staff position. Captain Gearhart is one of the best known officers in the Third Brigade and has been a very successful line officer.

It is stated that Captain E. M. B. Shepp, Company "B", 8th Infantry, located at Tamaqua, could easily organize a very fine Troop of Horse in this section. Many of the prominent citizens are interested in the movement and point out the importance of having a Troop of Cavalry situated in the Anthracite Coal regions.

It is expected that Captain Jacob Britz, Company "E", 8th Regiment, will go on the retired list after the coming Encampment. He commands one of the finest Infantry companies in the State and is a veteran of two wars. The name of Dr. Bricker is mentioned as a desirable successor to Captain Britz.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has presented a very valuable piece of ground to the Williamsport Battalion for an armory site and the Board of Trade is taking an active interest in the furtherance of the plan to properly house this time-honored organization.

Colonel Clement's 12th Infantry is preparing to celebrate its 30th Anniversary by a grand re-union on the 19th of August in which the members of the active command and the 12th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry will take part.

Colonel Clement's commission also expires at this time and it is generally conceded that a unanimous vote will be tendered the Colonel for re-election.

Captain Frederic Antes Godcharles of the 12th Infantry was quietly married to Miss Mary Walls Barber on Wednesday, June 15th in Washington, D. C.

Colonel Robert C. H. Brock, 2d Infantry, is giving his command good practical demonstrations in field work and in several instances has agreeably surprised the line officers with his knowledge and adaptability of the same.

Colonel Frank I. Rutledge commanding the 18th Infantry and his officers and men so royally entertained the officers and members of the Third Infantry during their stay in Pittsburg that an official expression will shortly be forwarded by the Board of Officers of the Philadelphia command, expressive of their appreciation.

The organizations, outside of the First Infantry, who have thus far signed the lease for the use of the Essington Range are the Third Infantry, First and Second Troops Philadelphia City Cavalry and Troop "A".

The following is an expressive and impressive extract from Special Orders No. 4, of Colonel O'Neill's Fourth Infantry, issued for the Memorial Day parade:

"The invitations to participate in the parade and ceremonies incident to the Memorial Day exercises of the Grand Army of the Republic on Monday, May 30th, and of the Spanish-American War Veteran Association on Sunday, May 29th, having been accepted, it is our duty to honor the memory of the soldiers of this great Republic, "who have gone before." "We extol their deed in story, and celebrate their name in song", and "strew their graves with the choicest flowers of incense-breathing May."

In the table of enlisted men's pay (paragraph 12, General Orders No. 19) there is no mention made as to the pay of first Sergeants either in Artillery, Cavalry or Infantry.

We have had several inquiries regarding the matter and a number of top sergeants are under the impression that it means a reduction of pay from three to two dollars.

The members of the Guard will be glad to learn that a strong effort is being made by the Armory Commission which met on June 21st, to bring about a solution of this most important question. It is stated that the plan which will be submitted, will meet with the hearty co-operation of the Commander-in-Chief and the Adjutant General.

Lieut.-Colonel Chas. C. Pratt

Among the aides de camp to the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, there is none more popular than Lieutenant Colonel Charles C. Pratt. His popularity comes from his gentlemantly deportment, allied with his earnestness as a soldier. All the duty which falls to him is performed with an intelligence and zeal which is alike creditable to himself and the service of which he is a part. In private life Colonel Pratt is a devotee of that "Sport of Kings," the rearing and racing of blooded horses. His magnificent residence at New Milford is the mecca for those who believe with him in the influence of the equine upon the pleasures of our existence. At Binghamton, New York, he has an extensive stock farm where his horses are bred and trained for the track, and at every big gathering of the harness classes his colors are often seen flashing under the wire in the lead.

Personally the Colonel is a man of most charming manners, he has a keen wit and is one whose friendship is sought by many.

An Item of Interest to all National Guardsmen.

The Adjutant-General, State of New Jersey, Trenton, N. J.:

Sir—I am directed by the Secretary of War to inform you that it has been brought to the attention of the War Department that a member of the National Guard of one of the States, after maneuvers at a certain seacoast fort in which he participated published in the public press an article illustrated by diagrams and giving a very minute description of certain apparatus used in coast defense, and that in communicating this information to the Governor of the State in question it was remarked that 'The National Guard is admitted to the fortifications on the same basis as the regular military force of the United States, and the Department concurs in the views of the Chief of Staff and the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, that measures should be taken to hold them to the same obligations of secrecy as are imposed on the officers and men of the Regular Army.' In this connection, attention is invited to paragraphs 405 and 406 of the Army Regulations, which prohibit the taking of photographic or other views of permanent works of defense, and the publication of written or pictorial descriptions of such works and the appliances used in connection with them. * * *

Very respectfully,
(Signed) JOHN F. GUILFOYLE,
Assistant Adjutant-General."

Willow Grove's Attractions.

Willow Grove, one of the finest pleasure resorts in the United States, is striving this year to surpass all previous records as the ideal place for a day's outing, and seems in a fair way to succeed.

There is such a diversity of amusements, etc., that a visitor who fails to find many different ones to amuse or entertain him must be very hard indeed to please.

"Ye Old Mill", realistic "Coal Mine", Willowgraph, Scenic Railways, or other mechanical amusement found in any up-to-date park is here in perfection, the Picnic Grove arranged with tables, etc., for basket parties or families, the magnificent Electric Fountain which as per new programme is illuminated at 8.00 P. M. added to the fine afternoon and evening concerts, Victor Herbert and his famous orchestra being the entertainers this week leave little to be desired.

The Philadelphia & Reading Railway's swift express trains running at frequent convenient intervals between Reading Terminal and Willow Grove having close connection at Wayne Junction with trains to and from Chestnut Hill, Germantown, and Frankford, are arranged that patrons can enjoy a fine summer evening concert and arrive home in good time. Time tables at all Ticket Offices.
